THE BISBEE FLOOD.

Full Particulars of the Disaster from an Eye Witness.A List of Those Who Sustained Damage by the Flood.

From Mr. Brooks who was an eye-witness of the terrible cloud-burst which occurred on Monday night at Bisbee we learn the following particulars of the disaster:

The work of destruction and death was fully completed in less than twenty minutes after the first drop of rain fell. The storm gathered rapidly and as the rain was soon falling in torrents the people hastened to the shelter of their homes, little anticipating that they would so soon be driven out in the storm, homeless. The lightning was almost a and the peals of thunder were deafening; but soon above the din and crash rose the shrieks of frightened victims, who were obliged to rush from their deluged homes to places of safety further up on the hills. Houses began to give way with a crash and yield to the flood, which carried everything before it, while the lightning gave uncertain glimpses of the weird scene of destruction. The frantic appeals of the doomed men for the help that could not reach them were plainly audible and heart-rending. A rescuing party bravely rushed to their aid, but succeeded only in saving one man just as he was about to share the fate of his companions. During the confusion that ensued it was some time before it was found that three men were missing, and a vigorous search up to the hour of noon the next day resulted only in finding the body of Mills. Two miners by the names of Kelly and Stevens are thought to be buried in the pile of debris which is heaped up by the culvert at the railroad bridge.

LOSSES BY THE FLOOD.

Those who were so fortunate as to live on the west side of the main street did not sustain serious damage, except where the flood filled the cellars and destroyed their contents.

At the Copper Queen store the cellar was deluged and the store filled with mud and water to a depth of three or four feet. The entire force were at work all night, shoveling out mud and trying to rescue the place from destruction. At the Copper Queen office the water was up to the top of the lower sash of the window and the loss sustained by the company is probably under-estimated. At the Copper Queen stables the horses were found standing in water, which nearly covered them.

The house formerly owned and occupied by Mrs. McBride, which was located near the Copper Prince, was totally destroyed. It had just been purchased by the Copper Queen company and the purchase money together with the house and contents was swept away.

Three cabins were also swept away, in which were the three victims, one of whose bodies was subsequently recovered.

The building occupied by Mrs. O'Brien, was not demolished, but was washed about four feet away from its foundation, and all its contents ruined by the deluge of mud and water.

The home of Charlie Platt, whose wife was formerly Miss Mary Welch, of Tombstone, was flooded to a depth of between two and three feet and its contents ruined.

The entire loss can hardly yet be estimated, but among those whose buildings were flooded and property more or less damaged were Chris. Rodovitch, who kept a fruit stand; Jacob Lang, proprietor of the Union Bakery; the music store of J. Langsdorf; Perkins' drug store; the Can Can restaurant; Pasqual Negro's saloon; Water's boot and shoe shop; Wallace's stage office and Mrs. English's lodging house, beside doubtless many others that have escaped mention.

All of the bridges in and about town were washed away, with the exception of the railroad bridge, and most of the little foot bridges that led across the gulch to the main street were also destroyed.

Storm Stories.

The storm of Monday night seems to have spread over a large portion of the Territory. Two buildings were blown down at Casa Grande and a house and barn about seven miles from that place were destroyed. At Florence three inches of rain fell and several buildings were blown down. The new court house in process of construction was struck by lightning and the north wing badly damaged.

The bridge below Waterville was washed away last night.

The Grand Central mill was shut down, owing to the fact that the tailing bed was too wet to work.

We learn that the Sterling Silver mill was obliged to stop work on account of the storm.

Several parties were delayed at the lime-kiln on account of high water last night.

The road to the Dragoons just beyond the foundry, is so badly washed as to be impassable by teams.

The Bisbee train had not reached Fairbank at last advices, and the N. M. &amp; A., were unable to proceed farther south than that point.

The lightning struck the ground in the vicinity of the foundry last night and people who live in that neighborhood say that it rolled along the street like a huge ball of fire.

A swarm of people were out last night after the shower, investigating the numerous brooks which had formed. About fifty wandered off to the Walnut gulch, where there was quite a river, whose roar could be heard at the outskirts of town.

Mr. and Mrs. Perkins had quite a serious time in returning to their home at the Grand Central mill yesterday. At Waterville they were obliged to wait for the water to recede as they found that the bridge was washed away and at the three mile house they were again obliged to wait for two hours, reaching home finally at ten p.m. having spent nearly five hours on the road.

AT FAIRBANK.

From Mr. Schmieding, who was detained at Fairbank last night by the storm, we learn that the rain that visited Tombstone had spent little of its force before reaching Fairbank, and the water swept down, transforming the entire valley into a lake. The International Hotel, which was so badly damaged by a recent storm, is a complete wreck from the effects of last night's deluge. Several yards of track south of the depot are washed away and nearly all of the houses along the main street were flooded. At the Montezuma hotel, which stands somewhat higher than the adjoining buildings, the water nearly reached the floor of the porch. The flood had by no means subsided this morning and the roads between that place and Tombstone are very badly washed, although not impassable.

Some years ago we were very much subject to severe spells of cholera morbus; and now when we feel any of the symptoms that usually precede that ailment, such as diarrhoea, sickness at stomach, etc., we become scared. We have found Chamberlain's Remedy the very thing to straighten one out in such cases, and always keep it about. It is somewhat similar to the usual cholera cures, but seems to contain ingredients that render it more pleasant to take and that do not their work more quickly. Sheriff Devereux tells us that he is subject to cholera morbus, and recently felt a spell coming on, when he obtained a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhea Remedy, and two doses made him all right. We are not writing this for a pay testimonial but to let our readers know what is a good thing to keep handy in the house.—Troy, (Kan.) Chief. For sale by H. J. Peto.

A Dog Fight.

Apropos of Col. McCook, who, if report says true, is to be the commander of the department of Arizona, Santa Clara tells its little readers a story to illustrate that grown-up folks quarrel over trifles as well as children. A young lieutenant at Leavenworth had a favorite dog shot by a sergeant who was over zealous to have the law to muzzle dogs strictly obeyed. The wrathful lieutenant expressed a wish to give the sergeant a dose of the same medicine his dog had received, whereupon he was reported to Col. McCook as having threatened the life of a subordinate officer. The Colonel recommended a court martial, but General Merritt returned the papers, saying the affair was too trivial to be noticed. Col. McCook appealed to Gen. Crook, who forwarded the papers to Washington and recommended that Gen. Merritt's headquarters be changed, which was finally done, all to settle a dog fight.

The Mulatos Mine.

The countersuit brought by the Messrs. Aguayo Bros., through their agent in San Francisco, to determine the question of jurisdiction of the San Francisco courts in the suit of Mr. Hobart et al., to recover the purchase price paid for the Mulatos mines has been decided in favor of the latter. The Messrs. Aguayo have brought another suit on the same question which, when decided, will finally settle the matter of jurisdiction.—[Herald.
